

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

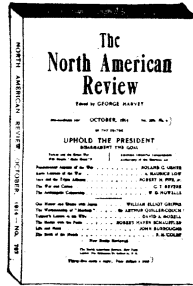

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

1917

March

ONE-HUNDRED-SECOND YEAR

Contents

VOL. 205: NO. 3

	Page
AN ALLY OR A HINDRANCE?	EDITORIALS 321
EVOLUTION OF COMMERCIAL BLOCKADE	EDWARD S. ROSCOE 345
OUR DEFECTIVE MILITARY SYSTEM	MAJ.-GEN. W. H. CARTER 356
OUR NAVAL PROBLEM	LIEUT.-COM. L. A. COTTEN 367
HOW TO RAISE ARMIES	SYDNEY BROOKS 376
A DEFENSE OF THE CONSTITUTION	DAVID JAYNE HILL 389
CARRANZA'S NEW INDUSTRIAL POLICY	ROLAND G. USHER 398
CONSCIENCE AND THE "CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR"	SIDNEY WEBB 403
WHAT ARE THE CHURCHES TO DO?	REV. S. D. MCCONNELL, D.D. 421
DREAM-LIFE	M. SENIOR 429
THE ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS TO PLATO'S REPUBLIC	EDWARD A. THURBER 431
WILLIAM DE MORGAN	WILLIAM LYON PHELPS 440
ARE MOVIES A MENACE TO DRAMA?	BRANDER MATTHEWS 447
DRAMA AND MUSIC	} LAWRENCE GILMAN 455
THE BOOK OF THE MONTH
NEW BOOKS REVIEWED—LETTERS TO THE EDITOR	466

The price of The North American Review, published monthly, is thirty-five cents a single copy, or four dollars a year, in the United States, Porto Rico, Cuba, and the Philippine Islands. Subscribers in Canada should add to the yearly subscription price 36c. for postage, and those in foreign countries 96c. Remittances may be made by money order, bank check, draft, or registered letter. Renewal orders if sent in promptly insure no break in the receipt of copies.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW, 171 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

CICERO

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE AND WORKS

A Commentary on the Roman Constitution and Roman Public Life

By HANNIS TAYLOR

Hon. LL.D., of the Universities of Edinburgh and Dublin and of eight American Universities

HIS EMINENCE JAMES CARDINAL GIBBONS:

"On perusing your great work, 'Cicero, A Sketch of His Life and Works,' my appreciation of him has been vastly enhanced.

"You have exhibited to public view a fine, living, speaking portrait of the great Roman Tribune, with his many-sided talents, his cogent reasoning powers, his copious command of language, his logical train of thought, together with his recognition of a Supreme Being and a moral Governor of the world obtained solely by the light of reason. You have set before us a man who was a forerunner of the supernatural gospel light, by giving a complete picture of one whom the average student usually sees from a rather limited angle."

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

"Dr. Taylor divines Cicero. That may be for some specific reason. There is a certain affinity between the two men, in their intense and impassioned patriotism and in their interest in constitutional law. To this we may also add their common possession of philosophic minds, both analytic and reflective. Upon the result, however, of whatever causes, both Dr. Taylor and the public are to be felicitated. For it is a fine and useful thing thus to divine the greatest Roman—perhaps save one—of the pre-Augustan age.

We must remember, then, that Cicero was one of the greatest lawyers of the world of all time. He was the leader of the Roman bar, says Dr. Taylor.

"Nor must we forget his preeminence as a philosopher. It was not in vain that his education was chiefly Greek. He became deeply imbued with all that was best in the Stoic school, so that in pure philosophy he would have been a worthy contemporary of Plato himself. But to Stoic virtue and to Socratic vision he conjoined the juridical spirit of Rome, and from the compound evolved a philosophy all his own, which may not unreasonably be regarded as a forerunner of Christianity.

"Now, it is this many sided but always masterful Cicero that Dr. Taylor presents in what he calls a sketch, but which is a sketch of encyclopaedic comprehensiveness. It is not, of course, as the sub-title indicates, merely a character study of the man. It is a critical study of his times, of the Roman constitution at the zenith of its power, and of Roman public life in what was incomparably its most splendid and most significant epoch. It is also a coherent and vivacious narrative of those chapters of Roman history in which not only Cicero but also Pompey, Caesar, Sulla, Marius, Cinna, Crassus, Lucullus, Antony and young Octavius were vital figures. There is no other passage in the history of the world more pregnant with instruction, reminder and admonition to the citizens of a republic. In part, therefore, in its extensive considerations of the Roman constitution and the trend of Roman political life, this volume may be bracketed with the same author's works on the British and the American constitutions in a sort of trilogy of republican evolutions."

This account of Cicero's life and time should appeal with peculiar force to the American people, embodying as it does a record of conditions so nearly identical with our own.

Illustrated by reproduction of old and rare prints, $3.50

FOR SALE AT ALL BOOKSTORES

A. C. McCLURG & CO.
PUBLISHERS

When writing to advertisers kindly mention The North American Review